

Call for Papers

Have you done anything really interesting this year?

Have you been involved in a new project that others would like to hear about?

Or have you been doing something for a long time that others could learn from?

If so, come and share your expertise with us at the IMI Annual Conference at the Stormont Hotel Belfast in October this year.

This invitation, open to members and non-members of the Institute, calls for abstracts for both the workshop and general presentation sessions. We also welcome abstracts for the New Voices session. New Voices presentations are short eight minute talks given by first time speakers. All New Voices speakers will have a year's IMI membership paid. The best New Voices presentation will win a free conference ticket for next year.

Suggested themes include

- New and novel uses of technology applied to photography, video and design in healthcare
- Design and illustration opportunities in medical healthcare education
- Social media and its use in healthcare communications
- Workflows and imaging technique, as well as novel medical visualisation techniques
- Managing in challenging times

This list is not exhaustive; we also welcome presentations based on traditional photography, design and video within the healthcare setting.
