What do clinical photographers do?
Clinical Photographers and Video Producers are responsible for the clinical recording of patients, using still and moving pictures, working in a studio, operating theatre, ward and clinic.

How can I become one?
• Degree in photography or a related media subject and a Graduate or Postgraduate Certificate* in Clinical Photography
• BSc(Hons) in Clinical Photography from Westminster University – 3 year full time

*The Postgraduate Certificate is a 12 month distance learning course at Staffordshire University or a 14 month distance learning course at Cardiff University. This is gained during a training period whilst employed.
